Manish Malhotra unveiled his newest collection, 'PORTRAITS' at the India Couture Week tonight over a spectacular show at the Taj Palace Hotel.

An ode to femininity and heritage, Manish Malhotra's 'PORTRAITS' derives its inspiration from the innate desire to capture moments of beauty and make them timeless.

'PORTRAITS' frames the tales of the neo-bride in a stunning tableau of colours, fabrics and silhouettes. Much like her vibrant personality – vivacious yet demure, opulent and simple, traditional though steeped in modernity, the collection is a beautiful play of picture-perfect juxtapositions. While the fabrics and silhouettes appeal to contemporary sartorial sensibilities, the detailed embroidery is reminiscent of Indian craftsmanship of yore.

The model is wearing a long, shimmering, light-colored gown with a sheer, ruffled skirt and a matching long-sleeved top. The gown is heavily embellished with sequins and beads, giving it a luxurious appearance. The model is walking on a runway, and the background is dark with some lighting fixtures visible.
