Written by Amit Bachchan
Saturday, 02 March 2013 17:33 - Last Updated Saturday, 02 March 2013 17:40

If a Maruti could ever sing, this would be it. And it would sound really awesome thanks to Diljit Dosanjh's voice. The title track of Mere Dad Ki Maruti has been sung by the Punjabi superstar who is most popular for his collaboration with Yo Yo Honey Singh on Goliyaan and 'Lakk is 28 kudi da' besides solo hits like 'Radio' and his films Jatt & Juliet among others. This track is an instant earworm and has some crazy lyrics penned by Kumaar and composed by Sachin Gupta that give voice to the missing car like another character in the film.

When Diljit came over to the YRF Studios to record for the first time, he was pleasantly surprised that the entire cast and crew were big fans of his blockbuster Punjabi film, 'Jatt & Juliet'.

The Mere Dad Ki Maruti music album is a North Indian hand-grenade set to explode in the palm of your hand… Featuring some of the biggest names in Punjabi music coming together on one single album for the first time. Dig this… Mika, Yo Yo Honey Singh, Diljit Dosanjh, Panjabi MC besides others.

Get ready for an outrageous comedy set against the backdrop of a loud Punjabi wedding in Chandigarh. MDKM tells the story of a boy who sneaks his dad's fancy new car out to impress the college hottie and how all hell breaks loose when he loses it!