

Zero Dark Thirty wins Oscar for Best Sound Editing!

•Written by Amit Bachchan•

••Monday•, 25 •February• 2013 23:12• -

The wait for the Oscar is over; PVR Pictures 'Zero Dark Thirty' wins Oscar for Best Sound Editing. The sound editing team is on cloud nine after winning the glorious 85th Annual Academy Award.

Directed by Kathryn Bigelow, the movie was well appreciated. Winning the Oscar was an icing on the cake for the team. Being a realistic movie the sound editing team worked really hard in creating the perfect sound. The award was shared between Zero Dark Thirty and Skyfall as the teams were tied after achieving a statistic dead heat in the voting for their Oscar category. This was only the sixth tie in Academy Awards history. The most famous was back in 1968, when Katharine Hepburn and Barbra Streisand shared the best actress award for their work in A Lion in Winter and Funny Girl, respectively.

PVR Pictures is the flagship film production and distribution arm of PVR Group and has an experience of distributing over 325 Hindi, Hollywood and Regional films. PVR Pictures which released Zero Dark Thirty in India is all geared up to release The Host, The Reluctant Fundamentalist, The Mortal Instrument: City of bones in the coming months.