Salman Khan who recently paid a visit to Subhash Ghai in the producer-director's acting school lost his temper on the students there. Salman was not happy to see the way the students treated Subhash Ghai and himself. Salman and Subhash were having a word when a group of students passed by and completely ignored them. Salman went back to the students and asked them as to why couldn't they stand up and greet a veteran film-maker like Subhash Ghai. He also told the students that the film industry has to place for people who do not respect their seniors and elders in the film industry.

Subhash Ghai however defended his students by saying that since he passes by in the institute quite a lot of times, it is not possible for them to stand up to greet him every single time. However Salman Khan seemed quite irked by the students behavior and was in no mood to talk to them, even when they offered their apologies to both of them.
