Daisy Shah was signed for the film Spark as the lead, directed by V K Singh, from which she allegedly walked out halfway after she was signed opposite Salman Khan in Jai Ho. Now the makers of Spark are upset with her that she is not keen on considering their request to promote their film.

Director V K Singh claims that Daisy has started to shoot for their film before she was approached for Jai Ho and she had completed a song, “She was cast as the lead actor, but she backed out of my project just because she got a film starring Salman Khan. I replaced her with Subhashree Ganguly as the lead then,” says the director.

Director is annoyed that Daisy isn’t helping makers promote the song in which she did an item number and is retained in the final cut, director further adds, “Now she is not even considering our request to promote the item song she has shot, initially, she had said that she will do so, but only after Jai Ho releases. Now she is backing out on all her promises”

The Other Side Daisy Shah however decline these claims, she says, “I was playing the lead in the movie, and they had not figured out the male lead at that time. After the shoot (of the song), Jai Ho started, and they could not wait for me, so they went ahead with the film,”

About the song of the film spark, featuring her, she further adds, “I am upset that they are calling it an item song. It was a situational song according to the script. But they are using it for publicity now. I wouldn’t promote(the film) or get associated with the people who have their own selfish motives”
